

GLENDALE

Developer in Glendale starts work on 'attainable housing' for teachers, nurses and more

Published 4:05 p.m. MT Feb. 1, 2024 | Updated 6:00 a.m. MT Feb. 2, 2024

Flanked by several workers and subcontractors, Dan Richards, a partner at Greenlight Communities (center left), and Phoenix Councilmember Betty Guardado (center right) participate in a groundbreaking ceremony for new workforce housing projects in Glendale on Thursday.

Shawn Raymundo

<https://www.azcentral.com/picture-gallery/news/local/glendale/2024/02/01/greenlight-communities-groundbreaking-ceremony/72442980007/>

(From left) Phoenix Councilmember Betty Guardado and Dan Richards, a partner at Greenlight Communities, shake hands during a groundbreaking ceremony for two new workforce housing complexes near Glendale's entertainment district on Thursday morning.

Shawn Raymundo

<https://www.azcentral.com/picture-gallery/news/local/glendale/2024/02/01/greenlight-communities-groundbreaking-ceremony/72442980007/>

During a groundbreaking ceremony for a workforce housing project in Glendale on Thursday morning, Phoenix Councilmember Betty Guardado praises Greenlight Communities for building attainable apartment units around the Valley.

Shawn Raymundo

<https://www.azcentral.com/picture-gallery/news/local/glendale/2024/02/01/greenlight-communities-groundbreaking-ceremony/72442980007/>

Construction crews work to build one of Greenlight Communities' workforce housing complexes at 99th and Montebello avenues on Thursday morning.

Shawn Raymundo
